Strategic Volunteer for Not-for-Profits

Dear Friends,

On behalf of the 4,789 adults and children we were able to help last year, THANK YOU. Because of you, we were able to provide our clients with warm meals, hot showers, housing, medical services, emergency food, employment, and case management services. We feel very fortunate to have your continued support as our funders, donors, volunteers and partners.

As we look to the future, we are committed to continue helping homeless persons and those at-risk of becoming homeless. We are also looking at our services and those of our partner agencies in order to ensure that we are engaging clients using the best known practices in the industry. We are studying trends in housing and homeless services and meeting with our staff and colleagues throughout the state to see how we can best serve people in need in order to further our mission to end homelessness.

We do not take our responsibility lightly. Every person deserves housing, and every person deserves to have their basic needs met. These are not merely privileges for those who can pay. By choosing to support Mercy Housing and Shelter financially, you have affirmed our work and demonstrated your confidence in our ability to make a real impact in the lives of our most vulnerable friends and neighbors.

We would like to thank our Board of Trustees for their leadership, our management team for their energy and creativity, and our staff for their caring and dedicated work, as well as the thousands of individuals and families who trust us to help them work towards their goal of permanent housing.

And finally and sincerely, thank you. Without YOU there is no MERCY.

With gratitude,

Dave Martineau
Executive Director

Following Through

Ten years ago, Armando* got divorced.

It didn't happen all at once, but little by little, the divorce took its toll on him. First he found himself sleeping on friends' couches, then staying in shelters, until eventually he was sleeping in his car for weeks on end, parking in garages on the coldest nights.

Finally, Armando decided enough was enough. When he reached out for help, he found Mercy Housing and Shelter. He moved into temporary housing at Mercy's St. Elizabeth House. In this transitional living program, he met daily with a Case Manager who helped him set goals that would eventually lead him to stable housing and a fresh start. He knew if he didn't stick to his goals and follow the plan he would be back where he was before: sleeping in his car in a vacant parking garage. But, day by day he started reaching his goals and the various elements of his life began to come together to enable him to move into a home of his own. He made friends at Mercy—people in similar situations—and he found he was motivated by their journeys. As a veteran of the Vietnam War, Armando was eligible for new services designed to address the specific challenges homeless veterans often face.

Like many homeless people, Armando had a family, including kids, but he didn't want them to shoulder his burden. Armando distanced himself from his family while he was homeless to prevent them from making sacrifices on his behalf. Pulling himself out of homelessness was something Armando needed to do on his own.

When asked what he would like Mercy's supporters to know, Armando said: "Homelessness does exist—I'm part of it. Well, I was part of it. I don't plan to return to that kind of life."

Armando's biggest source of pride is that he never gave up on his goals once he connected with Mercy's services. He followed through on the plan he developed with Mercy staff—and it worked.

To people in similar situations, Armando says "If you work your end of the bargain, in the end it'll be worth it." Sitting today in his beautiful apartment in a safe neighborhood, you'd never guess he was living in a car not too long ago. "I don't plan to leave anytime soon."

*Not his real name.

Mercy Housing and Shelter is proud to have participated in the 100 Day Campaign, an initiative to end chronic homelessness this past summer. Together with federal, state, and local officials, as well as businesses and other agencies, Mercy worked to house chronically homeless veterans in a much faster time frame. It is important to mention that Connecticut was the first state in the country to end chronic homelessness for veterans. Mercy continues to place veterans into housing within a 60-day time frame. As our mission states, Mercy works to eradicate homelessness—not just manage it.

St. Elizabeth House – Turning a House into a Home

In 1983 the Sisters of Mercy purchased St. Elizabeth House on Main Street in Hartford. The building contained a community soup kitchen and rooming house that was about to be sold to developers. Seeing the need for these critical services, the Sisters of Mercy saved the building and the programs serving thousands of people in the community.

The original building is a 210 year old brick colonial and a National Historic Landmark called the “Henry Barnard House”. Henry Barnard grew up in this home and went on to become the first United States Commissioner of Education in 1867. The family eventually sold the home and in the early 1900’s a rooming house was added on for single women working in the city of Hartford.

Currently, St. Elizabeth House offers many programs and services including transitional living, a community respite program, soup kitchen, medical services, and employment center. Mercy provides intensive case management to help each client address the complex issues that led to their homelessness. Case Managers work with residents to set short and long term goals that will lead them back to self-sufficiency and independence.

St. Elizabeth House continues to serve more than 4,500 people a year but the building was falling into disrepair. Faced with the possibility of losing its historic status, Mercy embarked on a major renovation to St. Elizabeth House that would cost more than $5.7 million dollars. At the completion of this renovation, St. Elizabeth House will be more than a house, it is our hope that we will transform this “house” into a “home” for the people we are serving.

In the past several years we have raised over $5 million dollars for this much need renovation. We have built a new elevator shaft and installed a new elevator, built a three story connector that joins the two sections and provides handicapped accessibility to all floors and programs. In addition, we have installed over 160 new and energy efficient windows, and repointed the exterior masonry.

We’re Almost Home

We have entered into the final phases of this massive renovation to St. Elizabeth House which will transform St. Elizabeth House – into a home. The last phases include reconfiguring the interior space of St. Elizabeth House to create a more effective layout in order to provide the best services possible for our clients. These last phases are the most critical to serving our clients, and they will include: a new computer lab for our Jumpstart to Jobs Program; a new conference room for workshops and meetings; a new dining room for residents; the moving of our soup kitchen upstairs; renovated client rooms; handicap accessible bathrooms; air conditioning; new security and fire systems; and so much more.

By next summer, we hope to have completed these renovations and we look forward to creating a safe and dignified program site that will allow us to continue helping the thousands of people who come to us in need each year.

Consider making a gift to help sustain the programs Mercy provides at St. Elizabeth House today and tomorrow as we work to end homelessness.
